Published Every Weekday Afternoon.

Entered at the postoffice at Barre as second class matter.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1903.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

2,900

"Times, of Course"

That's what all the newsboys say when asked which Barre paper sells the best. There is no doubt about it.

"It said that in the national house of representatives there are 236 lawyers, and yet this is called an extraordinary session."

John Mitchell appears to have been the big man in the national labor convention, as he has shown himself in all recent labor activities, in which he has entered.

There were 30,000 people at the football game in New Haven Saturday. It is probable that the New Haven pastors had no great difficulty in counting their congregations yesterday.

William J. Bryan will not accept another nomination for the presidency, no, not even if it should be offered on a silver platter.—Boston Transcript.

How like the declaration of Squire Dunnett of St. Johnsbury, only different.

An elderly Quincy, Mass. lady, who, in her youth, was employed by President John Quincy Adams, celebrated the 90th anniversary of her birth Saturday by making six pies. There are those who are sticklers for health who will aver that she was old enough to know better.

The American Federation of Labor at Boston turned down, by a decisive vote, a resolution providing that unionists "ignore unfair injunctions by any capitalistic judiciary" by "a spontaneous and united opposition which will render such court rulings inoperative and bring them into ridicule."

Vermont and New Hampshire are likely to be the only states unrepresented at the St. Louis exposition New Hampshire residents are planning to make individual exhibits. It behooves the business men in this section to make an exhibit of Barre granite. Failure to do so would be a big mistake.

The state tuberculosis commission is not to be a mere name, it seems. The members are planning to visit state and private sanitariums in New York and New England points, which have the care of consumptive patients. They will then prepare an intelligent report which will be presented to the next session of the Vermont legislature. It is understood that they have already made an exhaustive examination of the conditions in this state and the results will be given in connection with their report. The legislature will be asked to provide a state sanitarium for patients afflicted with tubercular complaints. The needs require that, such an institution be provided for, and that at no far future date.

To those who have been watching the progress of the college football eleven this fall the results of Saturday's contests were in the nature of upsets. The defeat of Yale by Princeton lands the latter at the head of the procession beyond doubt as the New Jersey team has won every game on its schedule and has been scored on only once, that time by the formidable Yale team. The overthrow of Harvard by the representatives of the smaller college, Dartmouth, is a rude awakening for Harvard supporters who must realize now that they have a team which is below mediocre. The final contest of the big teams comes next Saturday when Yale and Harvard meet. The winner looks like Yale, and if that is to be the case, Harvard will be superseded by Dartmouth in the ranking of this fall's teams, with Yale a good second to Princeton.

Putting in.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

Mrs. Frederick Billings and family of Woodstock have gone to New York to pass the winter.

A letter received at the Bellows Falls post office recently was addressed "Mr. Northwall Pole New Hampshire Bellows Falls Vermont America."

Joseph Brooks of Brandon is ill. Mr. Brooks is about four months over 100 years old, and although blind, retains his hearing, strength and mental faculties to a remarkable degree.

John Gabjakle, a workman in the slate quarry of Norton Bros. near Pawlet, was instantly killed Thursday afternoon, Nov. 12, by a slab of slate falling from a load that was being taken to the top. He leaves a wife and three children in Hungary.

The Drury Brick & Tile Co. of Essex has finished making brick for the season and most of the help have returned to their homes in Canada. Preparations are now being made for the building of a large kiln shed in the spring. The business has been unusually large this season.

The purchaser of "Naulahka," the Lome of Rudyard Kipling, is Miss Mary Cabot. The house three miles from Brattleboro, is in Danvers and was built by Mr. Kipling about eight years ago, the author occupying it for two years. The purchase included the furnishings of the house.

At a special meeting of the Bristol Board of Trade Thursday night about $10,000 worth of stock was pledged and more is in sight for the rebuilding of the newly works, burned recently. It is expected work will be begun next week. A committee was appointed to solicit more stock and report tonight.

It is probable that a meeting will be held in the early part of January to form a state organization of the National Liquor Dealers' association. An effort will be made to have the 146 licensees of the state brought into the association that its objects—chief of which is to perfect the working of the license law—may be more effectively brought about. The meetings of the county organization recently formed will be held on the afternoons of the second Tuesday in each month at a place to be designated later.

John E. Smith, keeper of the house of correction, Rutland, is drilling twenty prisoners of the institution for the annual holiday entertainment which it has been customary for several years to allow the prisoners to give. This year there will be a minstrel show. The exact date of the affair has not been decided but it will probably be soon after Thanksgiving. Mr. Smith says that he has some good material, including several "real darlings," and he promises the best show ever given at the institution.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

Sure Mailing Device.

Mrs. Miggins—Does your husband ever forget to mail the letters you give him?

Mrs. Higgins—No; I always see to it that he puts them in his cigar case.—Philadelphia Record.

Just a Joke.

It seems that old Mr. Walter Raleigh was in love with a maiden named Dangleigh.

He quite lost his head
Over her, it is said;
She was doubtless a real hot tamaleigh.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Squeaking Mrs. T.

Mrs. Tanner—Oh, dear! I believe I shall fly out of my skin.

Mr. Tanner—Yes, Matilda, when you fly I guess it will be out of your skin; certainly not while you are in it.—Boston Transcript.

The Girl in Fur.

She's here again, the queen of all the lovely girls who reign

From San Francisco's Golden Gate to Kennebunkport, Maine!

She's here in all her glory.

The theme of song and story—

She who our loving gaze compels, whose charms set hearts a-fire—

That bright, incomparable miss, the dashing girl in fur.

The moleskin is her latest fad, and yet she cleaves to ermine.

Al, which of these becomes her best—what critic shall determine?

Yet Persian lamb and elvet

Our fond attention rivet.

Though leopard skins and monkey coats

Are seen on lovely backs

To cover which dear old pups must pay an awful tax.

Al, when, her billowy bosom, she hugs her dainty muff

And nestles both her hands inside, the very sight's enough

To set a fellow guessing,

His weakness fond confessing.

And make him long to fly with her (oh, foolish, foolish man!)

To Madagascar, Honolulu, Egypt or Japan!

The summer girl is witching, with her gauzy waists and hose,

And many a lay our poets warm have sung concerning these—

About their power to lure us

And sundry joys insure us,

Yet, though we may next year again go daffy over her,

Today we worship, sans reproach, the dashing girl in fur.

ROXBURGHE-GOELET
WEDDING SCENES

Extraordinary Acts of Women
Sightseers.

BEAT POLICE WITH THEIR FISTS.

Well Dressed Rioters Had to Be Carried, Kicking and Screaming, From Front of the Church—Some Crawled Down a Coal Hole at Side of Church, Hoping to See the Bride, Bridal Carriage Mobbed.

Amazement and disgust were expressed on every side at the extraordinary spectacle presented by the rioting women at the Roxburghe-Goelet wedding in New York. Never before in the history of the city, it was agreed, had the city's sense of decency been so outraged or the spirit of democracy so humbled, says the New York American.

Gossip over the wedding was overshadowed by the condemnation heaped upon the hysterical acts of the mob. Even society neglected the aftermath of a New York girl's accession to a duchy to discuss the riotous demonstration of 7,000 women about the carriage of the bride.

Women are the loudest in the expression of shame caused them by the fact that their kind descended to such extremes, and students of sociology find in the incident evidences of a decay of American institutions that foretells evil for the future.

For their failure to curb the mob the police have been subjected to outspoken criticism. Inspector McLaughlin was asked for an explanation of his failure to preserve order about St. Thomas' church. His report, which goes into the matter at great length, sets out the fact that the police were baffled because they had to deal with women, who cannot be handled with the same severity as crowds of men.

His plans were made three days in advance of the event, the inspector says, but they were completely upset by the unparalleled number and ferocity of the women who gathered, evidently determined to enter the church at whatever cost to their dignity and refinement. Twice he sent for reinforcements, he says, but never at any time had he sufficient men to cope successfully with the infuriated women who boldly faced him and refused to stand aside.

Bystanders support the inspector in his statements. There were innumerable instances where women fiercely beat the policemen with their clenched fists and had to be carried, kicking and screaming, from the front of the church. The task of the police was made immeasurably worse by the fact that many of the most persistent women were refined and intelligent in appearance, well dressed and apparently of the highest respectability.

Cut off from entrance at the church doors, fifteen women, all well dressed, crawled down the coal hole at the side of the edifice in the hope of finding an underground way to get a view of the bride at the altar. Other women were found hiding in rear pews and were forced to leave. Still other women rushed to the side of the bride's carriage and thrust their arms through the door to feel the texture of the bridal gown. There is good reason for saying that the duke and duchess were relieved of great anxiety when they finally escaped from New York. For five minutes during the time that the bride was absolutely at the mercy of the mob, with her carriage in the midst of 500 screaming and fighting women, all anxious to see her, there was imminent danger of the carriage being overturned.

The face of the duchess was pale and her eyes showed real terror as she crouched in a corner of the carriage waiting for the police to open a passage-way for the carriage. And again after the ceremony, when she and the duke were returning to the residence of Mrs. Goelet, there was a period when the carriage was absolutely swallowed up in the mob.

Great Wolf Hunt.

The annual wolf hunt in the Kankakee (Ill.) marshes will take place the day before Thanksgiving and will be the greatest event of its kind ever held in the Kankakee district, says the Chicago News. All the hunters and dogs in Kankakee county, with many from other counties, will participate in the day's sport. The wolves are unusually plentiful this year and the ground dry.

Illinois Central Reaching Out.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Illinois Central railroad held here the principal business transacted was the adoption of the proposition, submitted by the directors, for the purchase of the railway property, corporate rights and franchises of the following railroad companies, which will be incorporated with the Illinois Central proper: The Bantou railroad, the Illinois and Indiana railroad, St. Louis and Ohio River railroad, Christopher and Herrin railroad, Mounds and Olive Branch railroad and Groves and Sand Ridge railroad.

Queer Death of a Family.

Urbansville, O., Nov. 16.—Strange circumstances surround the deaths of Dr. and Mrs. Matthew Schweeters and their ten-year-old daughter Margaret of Leesville. The child died suddenly. Shortly before the funeral Dr. Schweeters fell in convulsions beside the coffin and died. That night Mrs. Schweeters sent the watchers from the room, and later she was heard to fall to the floor. She was dead when reached. Powder papers found indicated that poison had caused the deaths, but the coroner returned a verdict of heart trouble and apoplexy in all three cases.

Democrats to Support Treaty.

Washington, Nov. 16.—After discussing the Cuban reciprocity measure for three hours in caucus the Democratic members of the house of representatives have agreed to a resolution by a vote of 95 to 15 pledging themselves to support the bill after effort has been made to secure its amendment abolishing the differential on refined sugar and eliminating the five year clause in the treaty.

A Vanderbilt Wins Suit.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 16.—The suit of J. E. Hunt against George W. Vanderbilt for $40,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received during the blasting for the Young Men's institute, which Mr. Vanderbilt was building, has been decided against the plaintiff. Mr. Hunt, it is said, will appeal the case.

Emperor William's Condition.

Berlin, Nov. 16.—It is said that Emperor William's wound continues to heal in a normal manner. The correspondents here assert that the emperor has already begun to speak a little in a low tone and that the irritation of the vocal organs is diminishing. The Tagliche Rundschau says it is rumored in Munich court circles that Emperor William will shortly go to the lake of Garda, in south Tyrol.
